for search for an organisation, for example University of Oslo

Help, my organisation is not on the list

You will now get to a page which will allow you to start the download process.

The correct program will be recommended automatically.

Click on the blue button that is labeled with your operating system.

You will be redirected to a page where the download will start automatically

In case this does not happen, the download can be started manually as well. To do this, click the link listed on the site, and follow the instructions there.

In some cases, your device may open a window that prompts you to permit the download. If that is the case, confirm with „Allow“.

The file can now be found in your download folder.

Setup

You can now start the setup process. To do this, open your System Preferences and select the option „Profiles“.

You can now select the eduroam profile in the menu on the left. Once you have selected it, click „Install“.

A window will open, prompting you to provide your username and password.

Please note that you have to add „@uni-siegen.de“ (g123456@uni-siegen.de) after your username to be able to establish a connection.

When you have typed in your username@uni-siegen.de and password, confirm with „Install“.

Your device will now ask for your password or pin (this is the code you use to unlock your device).

After you have provided your password or pin the setup is finished. You have now established a secure connection to the eduroam network.
